

Fellow Reader of the Bible

The three charts in this document include a simplified Old Testament, which covers most of the historical books, the complete New Testament with the Psalms, and the entire Old Testament. You can use them in several different ways.

1. If you want to develop the habit of daily bible reading, you could begin by reading one chapter each day of the simplified OT. This is the first of the following charts and comes with boxes so you can chart your progress by coloring or checking the box next to the chapter you read. If you are following this chart you will read most of the historical books of the OT in one year.
2. If you want to read two chapters each day, you could read use the NT and Psalms chart in addition to the simplified OT chart. The first chart would be your bookmark in the Old Testament and the second chart would be your daily guide for the New Testament and Psalms. Each day you would read one chapter in the OT and another chapter either in the NT or Psalms.
3. When you are ready to read the entire Bible in a year, choose the complete Old Testament chart in conjunction with the New Testament and Psalms guide. Use the OT chart as a bookmark in the Old Testament and the NT chart to mark your place in the New Testament and Psalms.

Whichever way you choose to study God's word, I trust you will have a blessed time. As I have said in the tape on Daily Bible Reading and Devotions, there is no one way to study the Bible. I have found these charts to be a help to me, but you may come up with a different approach. May you read the word with joy, with diligence, and free from condemnation.
